

ABSTRACT

A web server having at least one software module integrated into the web server is provided. The software module produces an automatic functionality for an automation device. Additionally, the software module has direct access to a transport layer to open up a communication route that is independent of web technologies.